Look Ma, no hands!

Airman 1st Class Elizabeth Jobson, 355th Operations Support Squadron, trains on the proper use of the Baker Life Chute July 25. The inventor of the chute, Ralph Baker, visited Davis-Monthan Air Force Base to train air traffic controllers, trainees and firefighters on chute usage and to perform safety checks on the chute equipment. The chute is used to evacuate the 110-foot D-M Air Traffic Control Tower in the event the tower stairwell becomes inoperable due to fire, or any other reason. In such a situation, D-M firefighters assist the tower members by tying off the end of the chute, enabling a safe ride down. The chute is capable of safely evacuating up to 26-story buildings to the ground, and can support more than 84,000 pounds. The tower and firefighters conduct quarterly training on chute safety and usage. For more information on the Baker Life Chute, see Chute offers security, life-line for tower personnel, Pages 12 and 13.

One person - a lifetime of difference

People across the country will observe National Kids' Day Sunday to celebrate America's children and the fostering of positive relationships between adults and children through the gift of quality time.

"Positive role models help prepare the child for life, helping him/her reach their highest potential," said Kurt Bons, Big Brothers Big Sisters of Tucson program specialist. "We believe that a child can never have too many positive people in their life."

Many members of Davis-Monthan Air Force Base are making a difference in children's lives by serving as a positive role model through programs such as the BBBS program.

Currently Davis-Monthan makes up the second largest BBBS volunteer base, said Bons. "We are very happy with the number of military personnel who volunteer with us. We believe a large reason we have been so successful at Davis-Monthan is the reception we received from the family support center."

"I believe our mission statement sums up what we are trying to accomplish: 'to develop one-to-one adult-to-child mentor relationships guiding youth from a position of risk to one of achieving their highest potential,'" said Bons.

There are currently more than 130 boys and 70 girls in the Tucson area waiting to have a big brother or big sister become part of their life. The ages of children waiting to receive a big brother or sister range from 5 to 17 years.

To become a big brother or big sister, an adult commits to spending time with a child (most of whom come from a single-parent home), for a few hours a week for a year, said Bons. "We are trying to show the children consistent and caring relationships. Big Brothers Big Sisters provides a much needed stable adult who can help demonstrate a consistent caring relationship to a child."

As a result of the BBBS program, children are seen to be more trusting of their parent/guardians, said Bons.

Airman sends powerful message, hopes warning will deter making poor choices

By Airman Basic Jasmine Chastain

It's amazing how quickly a lapse of good judgment and a poor choice of friends can turn your world upside down and tear your life to pieces.

On the day after my 18th birthday, I started Basic Training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. Four weeks into basic military training, while preparing for the graduation parade, we were told there was an emergency. We were instructed to run inside and stay there until further notice; the date was Sept. 11, 2001. The terrorist attacks made me more determined than ever to succeed.

After technical training school I was assigned to Davis-Monthan Air Force Base. I was feeling a little down with the pressure of learning my new job and being away from home for the first time. That's when things really started to go downhill.

I attended a party outside of Tucson with some friends and made an extremely bad choice. I took some Ecstasy when it was offered to me. I was unusually happy for the first time in months and began to think that life wasn't so bad after all.

I knew it was wrong, but I did Ecstasy again the next weekend at another party. I was sure there was no way the Air Force was going to catch me and I hoped I'd feel as good the second time. Then I got the phone call that changed my life ... from the Office of Special Investigations.

Someone who had seen me at one of the parties recognized I was in the Air Force and reported that I had used drugs. At my Court Martial in November 2002, I pled guilty to using drugs and received a sentence of 11 months of confinement, total forfeiture of all pay and allowances, and a bad conduct discharge. Now I find myself confined at the Navy brig in California, jailed with people serving life sentences for murder.

I often catch myself wondering why I put myself in this situation. I feel regret and shame for my actions and have realized how wrong it was for me to do drugs. I grieve for the separation from my family and friends, the loss of my career, for letting down my coworkers and supervisors and for the disgrace I brought to my unit and myself.

Why did I write this letter to you?

I wanted to try and keep just one airman from making the same mistake I did. Don't take the chance I did.

Don't shame yourself and have to explain to your family, friends and coworkers why you're a criminal. The Air Force has a zero tolerance policy for drugs; and they mean it.

Davis-Monthan Unit Public Affairs Representatives

Unit Public Affairs Representatives are the "eyes and ears" of the 355th Wing Public Affairs office. Each squadron has unique individuals that have interesting stories to tell, whether it is about sports, awards, lifesaving acts, IDEA program contributions, etc.

Stories also include units making improvements to the methods or processes that they use or to squadron facilities or community areas via self help projects.

UPARs are responsible for getting the information to PA in a usable format and in a timely manner.

The Public Affairs staff focuses on issues that effect the base populace in general and UPARs judge the input for newsworthiness or unique human interest appeal before forwarding it to the PA staff.

Public Affairs utilizes UPARs to better tell a squadron's story. UPAR responsibilities include:

- ◆ Provide news ideas as well as write and shoot photos of squadron activities for submission to the base newspaper;
- ◆ Review and solicit Hometown News Release submissions;
- ◆ Review squadron submissions to the base marquee and Commander's Access Channel (COX Communications Channel 75)
- ◆ Seek volunteers for tours and speaking engagements

Long Term Care enrollment still open

By Tech. Sgt. B. Coors-Davidson
355th Wing Public Affairs

Medical expenses for long-term care, home care, assisted living facilities and nursing homes can have a huge financial impact on a family with an ill loved one in need of these services.

To lessen the burden of these medical expenses, Congress authorized the Federal Long Term Care Program in September 2000 for active-duty, selected Reservists, federal employees, retirees and qualified family members.

The Long Term Care Program is offered in a partnership between Metropolitan Life and John Hancock Life insurance companies and is contracted through the Office of Personnel management.

Full information and applications for the Long Term Care Program are available at <http://www.ltcfeds.com>.

The program offers a choice of pre-packaged or customized plans. There are four packaged plans. The basic plan is Facilities 100 and plans increase in benefits through Comprehensive 100, Comprehensive 150 and Comprehensive 150 Plus.

The Web site also features a premium calculator and a choice of payment options including payroll deduction, automatic bank withdrawal and direct billing.

As an example, the monthly premium for the Comprehensive 150 Plus plan for a 40-year-old male is about $110. Plans also offer an inflation protection option.

All plans include varying degrees of protection for nursing homes, assisted living facilities, hospice facilities and respite services. Programs also vary in their daily benefit amount and maximum lifetime benefit.

Other protection options such as home care, adult day care and home hospice care are also available.

To determine program eligibility and to obtain information on whether or not the program suits individual needs, visit the Federal Long Term Care Web site, or call (800) 582-3337 between 5 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays and 6 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturdays.

The Federal Long Term Care Program is not associated with military health care programs or TRICARE.

"Choosing insurance such as the Federal Long Term Care Program is an individual choice," said Robert Ray, TRICARE element chief. For questions about that program, people should call that office. People who have questions or need assistance with their military health care benefits or TRICARE plan can call the TRICARE office at 1-888-TRIWEST.

Manpower changes hit Davis-Monthan

Aircraft movements and other changes will affect manning numbers at Davis-Monthan Air Force Base over the next year.

A force-structure announcement from Air Force leaders July 23 detailed changes in manpower authorizations at bases throughout the Air Force.

The 355th Wing gains 249 military authorizations resulting from two additional HC-130s and four additional HH-60s. The 355th Wing gains nine military authorizations as a result of the new manpower standard for weather and loses 15 military and 22 civilian authorizations as a result of workforce reshaping. In return the Air Force offers cash awards to recognize savings realized. The awards range from $200 to $10,000, depending on the impact of the IDEA on Air Force missions. If a member submits an IDEA and it is part of their job responsibility, they may still get a monetary reward, but at a lower rate than if the IDEA impacted a process outside of their job responsibility.

D-M prepares for upcoming base assessment

By Stephanie Ritter
355th Wing Public Affairs

Davis-Monthan Air Force Base will undergo an assessment Aug. 18 through 22 to evaluate areas for environmental, safety and occupational health compliance and outline which may need improvement.

According to Tim Jackson, 355th Civil Engineer Squadron Environmental Safety and Occupational Health Compliance Assessment Management Program manager, every three years, Air Combat Command assesses its units on their ability to comply with DoD publications, as well as local, state and federal mandates governing environmental, occupational health and safety practices.

"The ACC team is up-to-date with all of the laws and regulations mandated by the regulatory community," said Jackson. "They assess all of our practices, looking for any areas they think we are vulnerable in and give us recommendations on ways to improve in order to be compliant."

While the next ACC External Assessment is scheduled for March, D-M performs annual Internal Assessments in an effort to continuously improve.

"D-M will undergo an Internal Assessment in August which will allow us to take a detailed look at ourselves prior to the ACC visit in March," said Jackson. "We essentially mirror the ACC process by taking a snapshot of our practices to find vulnerable areas."

This extensive form of checks and balances is a proactive way for D-M to avoid enforcement action by outside agencies.

"If the regulatory community finds violations, possible fines could be issued to wing leadership," said Maj. Leo Eisbach, ESOHCAMP sub-committee chairman. "In order to avoid that, we need to make sure people from the top on down work to correct any issues discovered in the Internal or External Assessments."

In many situations, the assessment process works to improve quality of life at D-M. According to Jackson, a few years ago too many recyclable items were being thrown in the trash. Through education, advertising and resources, the recycling program on base was altered into a highly used and extremely reliable resource.

"D-M has a strong positive history with ESOHCAMP and our goal is to continue that," said Jackson. "We work hard to update and correct previous findings so ACC can focus on other items later."

"It is important to note that D-M is doing things right," added Jackson. "However, the process is not over at the end of August after the Internal Assessment. We need to continue to look at ourselves daily."

"Because ESOHCAMP deals with environmental issues, it is the responsibility of everyone on base to make sure everything possible is being done to keep D-M on track and in compliance," said Eisbach. "This is a continuous process that requires everyone's constant involvement."

For more information about ESOHCAMP, or for more information on ways to help the base stay environmentally compliant, visit Davis-Monthan Air Force Base's Environmental Protection Web site at <https://intranet/355ces/Environmental/EnvProtWeb-Rev/default.htm> or call Jackson at 228-5928.

Many volunteers from D-M find the program to be a perfect fit for their own lifestyles as well.

The program takes into account the temporary duty assignments that many military personnel face.

One member of the base who volunteers her off-duty time to the BBBS program is Tech. Sgt. Jennifer Ellis from the 355th Mission Support Squadron, Airman Leadership School instructor. She has been a big sister to Rose Rojas for almost three years.

Being a big sister creates a win-win situation, Ellis said. It enables her to fill a void in her life caused by not having family near and to contribute to the community.

If someone is thinking of becoming involved in the BBBS program they need to ensure they can commit to spending two to four hours a week with their little brother or little sister, said Ellis.

"Knowing you are impacting the most impressionable years of someone's life in a positive way, and seeing it first hand," Ellis said, is the most rewarding part of being involved in the BBBS program. "These are impressionable years in someone's life. Children should have something positive in their childhood. Not only that, but seeing a different perspective than the environment they are in gives them a sense of diversity."

Ellis said, "Make sure you are upfront with your little [brother or sister] about being in the military. For example, let them know you might have to leave the area someday. I have told Rose that even if that happens, we will always have something special and she will just have a new place to visit."

Anyone interested in volunteering for or helping with the program can contact the family support center at 228-5690, BBBS directly at 520-624-2447 or visit the BBBS Web site at www.TucsonBigs.org.

Self Aid Buddy Care Tips

Abdominal Wounds

Treatment: If organs are outside the body, do not replace. Cover exposed organs with moist clean dressing, then secure with bandages.

External Bleeding

Treatment: Apply direct pressure with hand and use dressing if available. Elevate the extremity if no fractures are suspected. Use pressure points to control bleeding. Do not remove the dressing. Add more dressing over old one if needed. Tourniquets should be used as a last resort to save a life at the possible loss of a limb.

Eye Wounds

Treatment: Do not remove any impaled objects. Dress around the object to secure it. Apply bandages lightly to both eyes. Do not leave the patient unattended.

Chest Wounds

Symptoms: Sucking noises from the chest; frothy red blood from the wound.

Treatment: Look for entry and exit wound, then cover the holes with an airtight seal such as tinfoil or an ID card.

Bone Fractures

Symptoms: Deformity and bruising; tenderness around the affected body area; swelling and discoloration around the wound.

Treatment: Do not straighten the limb. If in doubt, splint the injury where the individual lies, if possible. Splint joints above and below the injury. Remove clothing from the injured area, unless in a chemical environment. Remove rings from fingers, if possible. Check the pulse below the injury, away from the heart to determine if blood flow is restricted.

Spinal, Neck or Head Injuries

Symptom: Lack of feeling or control anywhere below the neck.

Treatment: If they are conscious, caution victim not to move. Check the airway without turning the head. Immobilize the head and neck.

Heat Exhaustion

Symptoms: Cramps in the abdomen or limbs; pale face, dizziness, weakness, nausea, or vomiting; profuse sweating or moist, cool skin; weak pulse; normal body temperature.

Treatment: Treat for shock. Lay individual down in cool area. Loosen clothing. Cool the body by sprinkling with cool water or fanning. Give victim cool water to drink if conscious.

Heat Stroke

Symptoms: Headache; dizziness; red face or skin; hot, dry skin; strong, rapid pulse and high body temperature.

Treatment: Treat for shock. Lay individual in cool area. Loosen clothing. Cool body by sprinkling with cool water or fanning. Give cool water to drink if conscious and add two teaspoons of salt to one canteen, if available. Seek immediate medical attention.

Burns

Symptoms: Reddened skin, blisters, charred or whitish looking skin.

Treatment: Stop the burning process, apply cool water to affected area, do not break blisters. Do not remove clothing adhered to burned area. Apply dry dressing to affected area. Keep phosphorous burns covered with a wet dressing. Treat both the entry and exit wound for electrical burns.

AF clubs launch member drive

Agency officials hope to fulfill many airmen's dreams of world-wide travel with their 2003 club membership drive. The drive, called "Travel The World On Us," runs Aug. 18 through Oct. 31.

More than 140 people will win travel-related prizes valued from $500 to $5,000 just for becoming club members. The drive is open to all eligible nonmembers including active duty, reserve, civilians and retirees.

"The wonderful thing about this year's drive is that people can go from Broadway to Fiji; it's up to them," said Frank Black, Air Force clubs division chief. "We like it when we can offer people the right to choose."

This year's winners are allowed to choose their own destinations, according to Black.

"If you win the $5,000 prize, you could fly to Paris, take a cruise, rent a car, then use the balance to go see a sporting event," he said. All prizes are redeemed through local information, tickets and travel offices.

"We ... know our travel agents will do everything they can to make sure winners have a smooth transition when redeeming their prizes," said Denise Lanier, the Air Force ITT chief. Winners on bases without ITT facilities will be able to contact the Air Force Services Agency to redeem their prizes, Lanier said. Current club members are also eligible for a set of prizes and are automatically entered to win the grand prize, officials said.

"We want our loyal members, who are the backbone of clubs, to know that we appreciate them as well," said Fred Fried, Air Force clubs operations branch chief. Besides meals and entertainment, other member benefits include special discounts on food, entertainment, special functions and bingo; and chances to win trips to the Super Bowl, Pro Bowl and a regular season National Football League game.

For a membership application or more information, visit a local club. (Courtesy Air Force Print News)

Ironman

'Average Joe' competes in Korea competition, learns more than fitness

By Maj. Matthew Mangan
355th Maintenance Operations Squadron

Almost one year ago, I stumbled across the finish line of Ironman Korea, a 140-mile long triathlon.

Crossing that threshold was the high-water mark of a great personal journey. While traveling to that point, I was fortunate to learn a few lessons that were simple and universal.

The first, hardest and most important lesson is we must maintain balance in our lives. Life has built-in warning signs when we are getting out of balance. When we ignore these signs, life has a way of correcting the out-of-balance situation whether we want to or not.

In training to run 26 miles immediately after a 112-mile bike ride and a 2.4-mile swim, there is a huge temptation to run ridiculous amounts every day to get ready. Wise runners know they must balance training with

What is your idea of a perfect weekend activity?

Capt.

"A perfect weekend activity is going swimming with my wife and son, who is four and a half years old. He is learning how to swim this summer."

Tech. Sgt.

"My idea of the perfect weekend activity is taking the phone off the hook, sitting in front of my entertainment center uninterrupted and watching movies and playing video games at least until I get a headache."

Airman 1st Class

355th Component Maintenance Squadron

"A perfect weekend activity is taking in the scenery of Arizona and going to the mountains."

Staff Sgt.
Richard Landsverk
25th Operational Weather Squadron

"A perfect weekend activity would be skiing on the slopes all day with my wife, trying not to crash into big trees. Then retiring for the day in a ski lodge with a huge fireplace where we can make smores all night long."

Airman Tasia Trombley
355th Security Forces Squadron

"For me a perfect weekend would be to spend time with my friends."

rest and rebuilding time.

By ignoring this strategy twinges and pains will occur warning us to come back into balance. Ignorance of these warning signs will result in overuse injury, which can wipe out weeks of training benefits. In our work areas and home lives, if we concentrate too much on one area to the detriment of others, or attempting to carry alone a load we should share, life will provide us warning signs. Arguments with our loved ones, changes in personality, constant fatigue, forgetfulness and clumsiness should be recognized as warning signs to be heeded before we hurt those close to us, our co-workers or ourselves.

Often, we are blind to our own warning signs and need to rely on those around us to point them out. We must all be on alert to the symptoms of being out of balance and take care of one another.

Lesson two is we are all capable of so much more than we believe.

The way to reach seemingly impossible goals is simply one step at a time.

Five years ago, I was 40 pounds overweight and closer to a heart attack than the finish line of any race. I vowed to start taking steps to reverse my sorry state and started with the modest goal of riding my bike home from work one day. Accomplishing that first goal set up the accomplishment of incrementally greater goals ... riding once a week, riding every day, starting to run, and soon, looping the flight line.

Each goal was built on the foundations of those previous goals and each was just slightly more ambitious than the last.

Over the course of four years, I went from an average Joe who got winded on the way to the fridge to an average Joe who was able to move continuously for 13-plus hours. Anybody can do it with a little persistence and constant incremental progress. Set goals and enjoy each small accomplishment just as much as the big final goals.

Which brings up my final lesson—living life is its own reward.

Enjoying each day and the challenges met and overcome is what it is all about. The incredible joy of watching a sunrise on a morning run or the satisfaction in a job well done or feelings better experienced than described.

Every day we see and accomplish hundreds of fantastic things. Take a second to enjoy these jewels and then turn that energy toward your next goal or challenge.

Name: Staff Sgt. Cat Register

Organization: 358th Fighter Squadron

Duty title: NCO in charge of Operations

Hometown: Jefferson, N.H.

Years of service: Nine years

Reason for joining the Air Force: I joined because I didn't feel like going to college at the time.

Main responsibilities: I ensure the Lobos pilots have current and accurate information prior to flying. I track the status of all of our aircraft, the pilots' flying hours, ground and flying training events, physicals and much more.

Best aspects of job: Lobos' high operations tempo makes the day goes by fast.

Goals: My goal is to be a first sergeant/chief master sergeant.

Hobbies/outside activities: I enjoy barbecuing and swimming.

Favorite thing about D-M: The child development center

Best assignment: Incirlik Air Base, Turkey, because that is where I met my husband.

Inspiration: I am extremely proud of my husband, Staff Sgt. Wade Register. Even though he has been away from home many times with the 354th Fighter Squadron, faces a short-tour to Korea and lives far way from his two sons, his spirit and sense of humor are always high. He is very dedicated to his job and family. He makes me laugh all the time.

Chute offers security, lifeline for tower personnel

By Stephanie Ritter
355th Wing Public Affairs

Even as Air Traffic Controllers worked inside the cab of the tower, ensuring aircraft were safe in the air, others trained just outside, 110 feet above land on equipment designed to get the staff on the ground in case of an emergency.

"The Baker Life Chute is a safety device that allows a secondary route of escape in case something were to happen to the tower," said Master. Sgt. Gregory Harrell, 355th Operations Support Squadron Air Traffic Control training chief. "While the first choice of action would be to take the stairs in the event the elevator became inoperable, the life chute would be an easy way to get the staff on the ground quickly in case we couldn't use the stairs."

The Baker Life Chute is located on top of the Davis-Monthan Air Force Base tower. The swift deployment of the chute requires no more than securing it to the top of the tower, letting the end fall eight stories to the ground and securing it to a set of poles permanently located a few yards from the base of the structure. Ideally, securing the bottom end of the chute would be completed by the D-M fire department.

In order to make sure all members involved are prepared to use the Baker Life Chute, the tower and fire department have trained together quarterly on the use of the chute for more than 11 years. However, July 24 and 25 they got the opportunity to work with the inventor of the chute as well when Ralph Baker traveled to D-M to perform extensive training and safety checks on his creation.

Made of a tubular net, the chute may not look like much when stretched down the side of the tower, however, Baker firmly believes in the reliability of his life chute.

"The net is constructed with 66 load bearing cords of heavy duty, braided nylon," said Baker during a training session. "That gives the chute a combined gross tensile strength in excess of 84,000 pounds. You couldn't fit enough people in the chute to extend that strength."

However, even after receiving that verbal affirmation of the strength of the chute, first time trainees tend to have a little trouble taking their first step into the chute. But once they do, many claim the ride is smooth and quick, taking only a few seconds.

"It's a little scary at first because it's an 8 story drop," said Airman 1st Class Elizabeth Jobson, 355th OSS air traffic controller, "but once you get in the chute, all you can see is your feet. It's completely safe and a lot like a water slide." Jobson used the chute a total of eight times during the two-day training period.

While several first time trainees moved slowly down the chute, others took advantage of the opportunity to see how quickly they could evacuate the tower. A four-member team involved in the training was able to finish their descent in only 21 seconds.

"I always laugh to myself when I see people try to hot dog it down the chute," said Baker. "The reason it is funny to me is that no matter how fast they get going, the chute is designed to slow everyone down at the end so they don't come out fast. They all have to shimmy their way out at the bottom so even those who go fast don't end fast."

Baker also pointed out the fact that the design of his life chute allows for easy evacuation of injured or unconscious personnel.

"The importance of the chute is that it can go higher than any fire truck was designed to go," said Baker. "You can put as many people in as possible, one right behind the other just as fast as they can get in and come out the bottom to get people out of danger in a hurry."

But the Baker Life Chute offers more than a fun ride during training; it also gives tower personnel a peace of mind.

"We truly appreciate having the Baker Life Chute on our tower," said Harrell. "We hope we will never have to use it but it's nice to know it's there if we need it."

(Top) A member of the Davis-Monthan Air Force Base Air Traffic Control staff trains on proper use of the Baker Life Chute July 25 by taking a test slide. (Bottom) When deployed from the D-M tower, the Baker Life Chute stretches more than 200 feet to ensure those who slide down reach an angle at the end capable of slowing their forward movement.

D-M members place in martial arts competition

Staff Sgt. Tammie Clark
355th Wing Public Affairs

Members of the D-M Dang Soo Do School represented Davis-Monthan Air Force Base in the national martial arts competition held July 19 and received numerous medals for their efforts.

The students competed in the Battle of LA National Tournament held in Los Angeles, Calif. The categories of competition included forms, sparring, weapons and breaking.

"The tournament had nearly 300 competitors from all over the nation," said James Pumarejo, D-M Dang Soo Do instructor. "International champions even ventured to compete in the tournament."

"I think the students were elated when they received their first medals because they achieved something they worked very hard for under extreme conditions," said James. "We are so proud of them."

Sun Pumarejo, D-M Dang Soo Do School primary instructor, received two gold medals; one for her performance in the women's forms and one for the weapons forms category. She also received a silver medal in the women's Maintenance Squadron, received two bronze medals; one in the category of 7-year-old forms and the other in the category of 7-year-old sparring.

Richard Smith, son of Tech. Sgt. Rick Smith, 358th Fighter Squadron, received two bronze medals; one in the category of boys' weapons forms and the other in the 14-year-old forms category.

"The most rewarding part was seeing the D-M students had the best respect, attitude and strongest spirit at the tournament," said Sun. "There were plenty of 'bad sports' out there, so seeing our students win and lose graciously showed that they are not only getting the best physical training but also the mental rewards that martial arts has to offer."

The hardest part believe it or not was not the competition; it was the weather, said James. The air conditioning for the gymnasium was broken so students had to bear 90 percent humidity and more than 95-degree heat.

The Battle in LA is the second tournament the school has competed in since it opened in November 2001, said Sun. The last tournament was the World Dang Soo Do Championships in Columbus, Ohio, where the students placed in nearly every division.

"We were very proud to represent D-M and Tucson at this high caliber national tournament," said James. "Most base martial arts programs are small programs with little continuity with people always PCSing in and out. However, I think that our tournament results show that we have an extremely high caliber program right here on base, and we are here to stay."

But she wasn't invited.

Slumber Parties are more important than ever for today's woman. Slumber Parties are where adventurous women get together to share what's new and exciting in their lives.

A Slumber Parties gathering gives every woman the chance to discover intimate toys, games, lotions, and scents in the exclusive company of her friends...and to discreetly introduce them into her personal life.

It's easy to throw a Slumber Party in your home. And as the hostess, you'll receive free items worth ten percent of the amount your guests spend on Slumber Party products.

Home parties are conducted by knowledgeable and entertaining distributors. Requests for products are taken confidentially.

partygoers go home with their selected products...and you receive your free products that same night.

You might even decide to become a distributor yourself! Talk about instant gratification!

Your friends (and their lovers) will thank you for the dramatic improvement in their relationships. And you'll thank Slumber Parties for the improvement in yours.

Slumber Parties are for women over eighteen years only. Your guy can't be there. But he'll be glad you were.

Call your local distributor to schedule a party in your home. And be sure to invite Margaret. She may surprise you.
